WorldImages (<http://worldimages.sjsu.edu>)

NEW LISTING FOR AUGUST 2009

The internationally recognized WorldImages database provides access to the California State University IMAGE Project. It contains almost 75,000 images, is global in coverage and includes all areas of visual imagery.

WorldImages is accessible anywhere and its images may be **freely used for non-profit educational purposes****.

The images can be located using many search techniques, and for convenience they are organized into over 800 portfolios which are then organized into subject groupings.

LIBRARIES TO THE RESCUE [iTunes]

http://www.ims.gov/resources/podcasts\_Jun09.shtm

The Institute for Museum and Library Services website has a great multimedia resources section that currently has a podcast series entitled "Libraries to the Rescue". There are five episodes, each featuring a different state librarian and a different topic. They discuss how libraries have helped their communities, and provide steps libraries can take to help their own communities. The podcasts can be listened to online or downloaded. Visitors may also read a transcript of the program from a PDF file. The multimedia center can be browsed or searched in a few different ways. Using the links on the left side of the page, visitors can browse dozens of publications via the following categories: "Publications A-Z", "Publications by Year", and "Publications by Type". A link to "Online Resources", also on the left side of the page, has more than half dozen websites, magazines, courses and programs, including "Digital Corner", "Project Profiles" and "Connecting to Collections: A Call to Action Initiative Website".

HISTORICAL THINKING MATTERS [pdf, Quick Time]

<http://historicalthinkingmatters.org/>

The Historical Thinking Matters website is an excellent resource for teachers and students of American Studies who hope to learn about the importance of the historical perspective. Created by the Center for History and New Media at George Mason University and their colleagues at Stanford University, the site will help students learn "to interrogate historical sources and use them to form reasoned conclusions about the past." New users may wish to start with the "Why Historical Thinking Matters" section, which offers a short film about the Battle of Lexington in 1775. The "Student Investigations" area contains four investigations of topics from post-Civil War history, including the Scopes Trial, the creation of Social Security, and Rosa Parks. The site is rounded out by a solid set of resources for instructors, complete with examples of teacher and student work.

The Best Introductory Books in Your Field, all Online!:

www.septivium.com

This site attempts to list what can be considered as the single best book in each field that would serve as best introduction for laypersons. Each Book is in free, full text online format, no registration required. Look under the category LITERARY THEORY, as one example, for the two seminal books listed - you can read them online and in full text! <http://www.septivium.com>

NeoK12 is a wonderful collection of educational videos for science, math, social studies, and language arts. Each category is subdivided by topic. For example under the social studies heading you will find sub-categories of geography, government, industry and several more topics. Most of the videos come from YouTube or Metacafe. You could find these videos yourself on YouTube, but NeoK12 saves you time through their more thorough categorization and classification of videos. Includes Lesson Plans for teachers as well. <http://www.neok12.com/>

Access to this video is free, but, one must register first. Registration is absolutely free and takes just minutes.

From the Preface to this video series:

"Through the story of Rebecca, an aspiring singer on a journey across America, Connect With English touches on life's important issues: leaving home, parenting, education, work, love, success, and loss.

All of the characters use meaningful, natural language that students can put to work immediately in their own lives.

Each episode features dialogue that is slightly slowed down and subtly simplified. Key lines are repeated, idioms paraphrased, and important events retold.

There are constant visual clues to meaning, such as written signs, notes, and documents.

Facial expressions, gestures, and body language also reveal meaning for students.

Closed captioning can be used as a teaching and literacy resource. For levels from high beginning through low and high intermediate."
